

Gentlemen:

The proper correction for television content is for the public to vote with its remote control. America does NOT need any government agency dictating standards. In the best Republican tradition, let the free market decide. Period.